The Terrible Towel®
Turns

50!

A Pittsburgh Tradition

Myron Cope

The Terrible Towel® had its beginnings in the mind of Pittsburgh sportscaster Myron Cope, who was asked by his employers at the radio station WTAE to come up with a “gimmick” for the 1975 AFC Playoff game against the Baltimore Colts. In the weeks leading up to the game, Cope confidently talked up the towel on the radio and evening television news, but there was doubt in the back of his mind: what if the Steelers lost the game? Would the fans think that the Towel had jinxed it? What if hardly anyone brought a towel to the game?

During pre-game warm-ups, Cope anxiously scanned the stands—and saw less than a dozen towels. But as the Steelers gathered in the tunnel to be introduced onto the field, suddenly the crowd exploded, and Cope recalls “by my estimation, 30,000 Terrible Towels® twirled from the fists of fans around the stadium!” The Steelers went on to win the game, and The Terrible Towel® went on to become a symbol of the bond between the franchise and its nation of fans, a symbol that’s recognized all over the world. Since 1996, proceeds from the sale of The Terrible Towel® items have benefited the Merakey Allegheny Valley School. Since then, more than $4 million has been donated to the school, which helps people with intellectual and developmental disabilities.
